Ethical Investing in Focus

The largest corporate fraud in Germany history, Wirecard, was uncovered this month with the ex-CEO arrested and nearly $3bn of bank account money has found to be missing. Shamefully the German regulators had harassed and arrested short sellers and the Financial Times journalists who tried to bring this to light in the last 2 years.

We focus a lot on the “E” of ESG, in ethical investing, but the Governance matters a lot as well. One would hope that German regulators (and Auditors) focused more themselves rather than just blindly trusting management.

Portfolio review

The Fund fell 0.28% in June, outperforming global markets which fell 0.51% in AUD terms. Global equities rose 3.0% in USD terms, as markets continued their rebound from March lows, capping off the best second quarter since 2009 and despite increasing evidence of a “second wave” of COVID-19 infections. The rise in the AUD dampened returns.

Asia Ex Japan, which lagged significantly in the last month, led the rebound (+7.7%) as fears of US retaliation over Hong Kong were pushed aside. Europe (3.9%) had one of its best performances compared to the USA (2.1%), whilst Japan, which the fund is overweight, lagged (-0.1%)

One thing that didn't change was Technology (+9.4%) leadership, following on from the 7% in the month before as the market continues to seek out long duration growth stories. Energy was the worst performing sector (-0.5%), along with Utilities (-1.5%).

Reflective of the strong performance of the Technology sector for the month, Tencent, our largest holding, rose strongly over the month and was the largest contributor. Having sold off a little on results last month, the Fund added to the position and the stock rose as southbound Connect investors' from Mainland China added to their holdings in it.

The second largest contributor was our sector neutral pair in Japanese homebuilder stocks, Open House and Iida. In May Open House reported excellent results, whilst Iida cut dividends and guidance. The valuation dispersion was still not reflective of the differential earnings outlook, so June's performance went some way to rectifying this.

All the Fund's largest detractors were in the USA. Liveramp, which provides digital marketing solutions to businesses, was the largest detractor, giving back a lot of the gains of May where it rose strongly after earnings. Also detracting was Keysight Technologies, as the market became more concerned about loss of customers around its 5G testing for Chinese customers.

Outlook

Somewhat remarkably given the increasingly bad COVID-19 news at the margin, the market remains stuck in a trading range.

Past Performance is not an indication of future performance.

We had discussed the view that as long as the data keeps improving, the market will be OK. Whilst this is the case, at the margin, shutdowns in California, Florida and Texas appears to be impacting the high frequency data in June, with the lower frequency data (Purchasing Managers surveys and employment) remaining on track.

With this in mind, the Fund has increased cash levels at the margin towards the end of the month. This is consistent with our prior views that post July may see increasingly difficult waters for markets to navigate. That said it is with low conviction as the situation remains incredibly fluid.

The Fund is positioned more for “COVID-19 risk off” in stock positioning (via long Technology and Education and short Air Travel) even if the net exposure isn't as heavily positioned for that scenario as it was in March/April.
